

Water Body Modification and Wildlife Impacts

For each alternate, the environmental document should identify the location and extent of water body modifications (e.g. impoundment, relocation, channel deepening, filling, etc.) The document should identify if the stream or water body is used for recreation, water supply or other purposes. The results of coordination with appropriate Federal, State and Local agencies should be included, as well.